

RBC Royal Bank invites you to attend a presentation on “How to Get Around and Get Ready for 2010”

Are you interested in learning:

- what the impact of the 2010 Winter Games means to your business
- what the impact is to your employees commuting to and from Metro Vancouver
- what traffic patterns in Richmond and Metro Vancouver will be changed that may affect parking, delivery and business operations
- what tools are available to help your business run smoothly during the 2010 Winter Games

The Vancouver 2010 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games are fast approaching. With this history-making event comes changes to traffic patterns, thousands more people in the city and an increased demand on roads and transit. As a business leader, you can help keep your business running smoothly during the Games.

Whether its supporting your employees to make smart commuting choices, rescheduling commercial deliveries to avoid high congestion periods, or reducing business travel during the Games, there are numerous components to consider to build a successful Games Travel Plan for 2010.

You are invited to hear about ways to maximize the opportunities while minimizing the impact of the Vancouver 2010 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games. Hear how you can build a Games Travel Plan to ensure your business and employees are prepared for 2010.
