

Term Deposit Dormant Account Notice

Pursuant to Section 6 of the Dormant Accounts Law (2011 Revision), ("the Law") RBC Royal Bank (Cayman) hereby gives notice that it holds Term Deposits that have matured and remain inactive for seven years or more.

Clients who currently maintain an Active account linked to a Term Deposit are advised to disregard the dormant notice issued specifically for Term Deposits, as no further action is required in such cases.

In accordance with the Law, if no qualifying transaction or written correspondence is received from the account holder or individual with a legal claim or beneficial interest on or before December 31st 2025, the relevant funds will be transferred to the Cayman Islands Government by March 31 2026.

Once this transfer occurs, your rights against RBC Bank (Cayman) Limited will be extinguished. However, you will retain the right to claim the value of the account or transferred contents from the Government under the provisions of the Law.
